- 09:22:16 From Laura Evans, she/her, Vibrant Emotional Health : Reacted to "These battles go on ..." with 👍
- 09:22:18 From Charles Browning : We call medical clearance a "dirty word" in our trainings to medical staff , as a tool to try to focus on medical stabilization vs the definition of medical clearance in ED which often isn't as helpful for the medical staff at crisis receiving centers

- 09:34:55 From Dr. Deb Pinals -(She, Her, Hers) : I agree- a form does not save a life!! We have to treat the whole person but the form helps figure it out.
- 09:35:16 From Stephanie Barrios Hepburn : Fantastic points, Dr. Balfour.
- 09:35:58 From Susan Robinson : Reacted to "Fantastic points, Dr..." with 💜
- 09:36:00 From Charles Browning : Some innovations I was going to mention but cut short for time.. mobile team coordination protocols developing with EMS; EMS protocols with crisis centers for drop-off after opioid overdose and induction of buprenorphine treatment in the field; CRC having collocated Fed Qualified Health Centers that offer medical support to center but also increase community engagement of those in crisis into primary care ; some CRC's pushing further with even more medical infrastructure for having crisis beds that can support isolation for contagious infectious diseases, wound care/stitching, etc, oxygen, etc.
- 09:36:37 From Amy Brinkley (NASMHPD) : One thought I didn't quite get out is the opportunity for peers to bridge the supports for people and there are peer trainings taking a whole health approach that would help bridge the need as well.
- 09:36:46 From Dr. Deb Pinals -(She, Her, Hers) : Please feel free to check out: <https://mpcip.org/>

- 09:39:38 From Meighan Haupt (NASMHPD) : So exciting!
- 09:39:44 From David : The just say yes model requires an investment in medical, clinical and nursing supports around the clock, and hiring leaders with the culture and values Dr. Chuck, Dr. Pinals and Dr. Balfour described as opposed to a focus exclusively on risk avoidance. Together, that has created something very different with the Crisis Receiving Centers in Arizona
