

SAMHSA'S concept of "A Safe Place for Help" emphasizes trauma-informed, person-centered environments.

WHICH OF THE FOLLOWING PRACTICES IS LEAST ALIGNED WITH THIS PRINCIPLE?

- A. Co-locating crisis services with law enforcement
- B. Including peers to foster trust and reduce stigma
- C. Offering 24/7 access without barriers
- D. Designing settings to feel welcoming and trauma-informed

While collaboration with law enforcement can be important, co-location may undermine the goal of creating a space free from fear or coercion—core to the “Safe Place for Help” principle. SAMHSA prioritizes non-law-enforcement-centered access points that are calming and person-centered.

A. Co-locating crisis services with law enforcement

B. Including peers to foster trust and reduce stigma

C. Offering 24/7 access without barriers

D. Designing settings to feel welcoming and trauma-informed